enough to carry them through and insure operation at about 80 per cent of capacity. Business in consistency better than a year ago, partly because of the cleaned up and sold out conditions which have been existent. This season's business appears to be secure, although the margin of profit is unduly low. Raw wool, like hites, is on a strictly demand and supply basis. The supply is unequal to the demand and the disparity seems likely to increase. Raw wool is still low priced as compared with other years, despite the recent advance.

SNAP GOES OUT OF WOOL TRADE IN BOSTON

The Boston Commercial Bulletin, reviewing last week's trading in wool in the Boston general market, says: "Considering the amount of wool available in the Boston market the volume of business put through has been of fair proportions, but there has been no particular snap in the trading and prices are just about where they were a week ago, although very firm. Foreign wools have again constituted the greater proportion of the business, both crossbreds and merinos moving with fair freedom. New domestic wools have been sold about as fast as they have arrived, although there has been, of course, no large quantities of these wools to arrive yet. Inquiry, which was reported a week ago, for merinos to go abroad, seem to have resulted in actual business, domestic manufacturers taking the wool instead. There is apparent an endeavor to hasten the shearing season as much as possible in order to get the domestic clip in the market while the market is bare, and the demand seems likely to be keen. The New Clip. Contracting has been progressing more or less steadily in the west during the week, although the volume of wool purchased does not appear to have been heavy. In Montana a Boston buyer contracted for seventy thousand fleeces in the Saco district at 18 cents this week, according to advices in the trade. Prices in Montana appear to have remained without and practical change since a week ago, and the same is true elsewhere throughout the west, at least so far as the unshorn wool is concerned. Growers are now asking in Montana 15 to 20 cents for any average wool and dealers refuse to pay this price. From Utah 20 3-8 cents is reported to have been paid for a fair-sized line of shorn wool sold by sealed bids at Mack. At a near-by town another lot sold at 20 cents, after the owner had refused 19 3-8 cents, which was the highest bid made. In Washington early wools are being taken by mill buyers almost wholly, and it is said that some of the wools are undoubtedly costing the mills about 50 cents clean landed cost. Estimates of territory wool purchase are, for the principal states, as follows: Montana and Wyoming, 50 per cent; Utah, 95 per cent; Nevada, 80 per cent; Triangle, 60 per cent. Prospects and Prices. An indicative of the present situation and outlook for the American market, the monthly financial review of the First National Bank of Boston, so far as it relates to wool, is of interest. It says: "The wool trade is an undoubted bright spot. Contracting for wool on the sheep's back in the west has been active and extensive—much larger than a year ago. The highest prices of the season are prevailing. Domestic and foreign wools are both strong in price, inquiry is persistent and shipments are heavy. There is some shearing under way and some new clip wool already headed to the market. The wools and worsted mills are about in the middle of the fall run. They are well stocked with orders

TEXAS AND CALIFORNIA

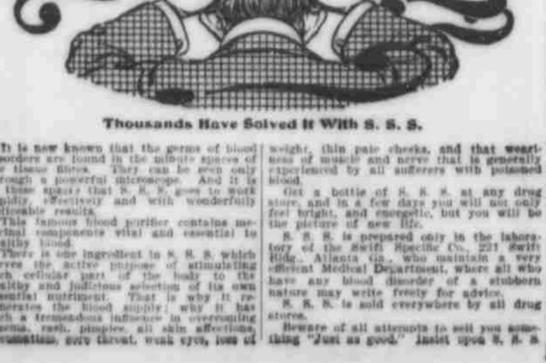

New Arizona wools have also sold readily at 21 1/2 to 22 1/2 cents. For one lot 22 cents is reported to have been paid. This means fully 55 cents for the best wools. New Utahs are expected in the market within the next week or two, weeks or more. Some of the earlier contracts in Utah and even in Montana have been sold, but no purchasing contracts have been reported during the past week. Texas and California. No wools of Texas and California are reported this week, locally, offerings being practically nil. Prices are nominally firm. Secured. Demand for secured wools this week has been rather irregular, some dealers having a fair call and others only a very meagre one. The turnover has been slow, but no purchasing contracts have been reported during the past week. Widely Used. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is one of the most widely known medicines in the market. It is as popular in Canada, Australia and South Africa as at home. This is because it "makes good." You can always depend upon it when you have a cough or cold. For sale by all druggists.
